been feeling lot of shifts after I became a leader. I've been helping moms and um although I find no time to do anything else but things are just falling in place you know it is so easy if something is bad for me it's naturally not happening if something is good for me it is happening automatically so it's just magic that I'm experiencing everywhere and people are nicer to me and I'm meeting mothers who are uh requiring our community and I'm inviting them and they are also So coming today only I met a access bank relationship officer right now and I invited us her to our community because she has a teenager and a six-year-old.

So I told her you must come and she told me to send the link so already done. So it's amazing journey and also my co-leaders and everybody they're giving me lot of love for some reason they tell that you're an inspiration or something. I don't think I am anything of that. It's all you and all my >> Yeah. But I don't know. I'm just doing my little bit and I still feel like a toddler in this vast ocean of learning and helping. But it is so magical listening to the mothers that I have got felt that shift and it is it is just wonderful ma'am. Even when I'm low I do not stay down because I have to go and give energy to other mothers. So even if something has put me down, I just bounce back up you know and nothing affects me.

So I'm in a very different space right now and help is just coming from left, right and center for my daughter, for me. So I would request everybody to help in this community work here and it just is magical. Thank you so much ma'am. Thank you. [Music]
