SUMMARY

The speaker shares his personal experience of getting a vasectomy, emphasizing the importance of shared responsibility in birth control and the decision-making process behind it. He reflects on his motivations, the procedure's simplicity, and the relief it brings in terms of future family planning.

- The speaker initially relied on his wife for birth control, realizing the need for shared responsibility.*
- He felt compelled to take control of his reproductive choices due to personal family dynamics.*
- Vasectomy is presented as a less invasive option compared to tubal ligation for women.*
- The procedure is quick and straightforward, taking only about five minutes.*
- Post-procedure, he humorously mentions the requirement to masturbate multiple times for effectiveness.*
- He expresses relief at having made the decision before facing potential future relationship challenges.*
- The speaker highlights the societal pressure to have children and how a vasectomy alleviates that.*
- He invites others to share their experiences and thoughts on vasectomies, suggesting a community around the topic.*

he looked at my balls he said they were cool and there's just like smoke coming from my crotch I feel like a like a high school sex head teacher but let's just get through this right let start from the beginning I got a visectomy and I'd like to tell you about it and why you should get a visectomy too I had for years just relied on my wife to handle birth control and yet for years I thought it just wasn't my problem like oh yeah birth control is a thing that she does and then I started thinking about why is she the one who's car ining this burden and as soon as I made that shift in my mind I didn't feel like I could face myself with integrity and not take that on myself every argument I made against getting ectomy it was invasive I didn't want to mess with my body was the same argument she could make for wanting not to put hormones in her body or a ring or pills or whatever another part is I was doing it with foresight I grew up in a broken home I have three half brothers who I love but I never see and the dynamic that I had growing up with his other families was really difficult I knew that if things didn't work out with my wife I didn't want to have to make the decision at that point whether or not to have more kids so I wanted to make the decision now before it was ever an issue and take it off the table so I started looking into vasectomies it's a pretty easy procedure compare that with a tubal ligation which is what my wife would have gone through and that is a serious and major surgery this guy said he would just clip my vast defrin and I'd be good to go he looked at my balls he said they were cool and that the procedure would take like an afternoon and then a little bit more healing then I would have to masturbate 20 times then the vasectomy will have taken when I got the procedure it was fun we chatted and there's just like smoke coming from my crotch but it took like 5 minutes I didn't know at the time that I was going to get separated from My Wife and now I am it is true that I feel a lot of pressure to be able to have kids and now I'm on Bumble every person that I match with is like kids sometimes well with me there's no chance getting a vasectomy is like hiding your keys When You're Sober so when you're drunk you're not tempted to drive like I got a vasectomy when I was married I didn't want to have more kids I'm sure down the road the lonelier and more desperate I get there'll be more and more pressure to procreate to satisfy the needs wants and desires of my prospective partners and I've taken that off the table and I'm so happy and so grateful that I don't have that Temptation even if you're happily married labor Equity is an unassailable argument for getting vasectomy my name is Joshua David Stein I think I shared like 85% too much but let me know what you think would you get a vasectomy have you gotten a vasectomy should we make like a snip snip Club where we can get together and talk about ectomies let me know okay bye [Music]
