SUMMARY

The speaker emphasizes the critical importance of composure as the foundational skill for effective teaching. Without composure, a teacher cannot encourage students, offer positive choices, or demonstrate empathy, which are essential for fostering a productive learning environment.

- Composure is the first and most crucial skill for teachers.
- Without composure, other skills such as encouragement and empathy cannot be effectively utilized.
- Teachers must be able to handle challenging situations, like being laughed at by students, without taking it personally.
- Self-awareness and self-evaluation are essential for teachers to manage their reactions.
- The primary goal of a good teacher should be to teach, not to punish students.
- Maintaining composure allows teachers to create a supportive and positive classroom atmosphere.

let me tell you skill number one composure skill number one composure without skill number one to me we can't have the other six skills without composure because without composure you can't be encouraging without composure you can't give two positive choices without composure you can't find it to show empathy so I ask you right n this happened to miss Peter first day of school when I asked her do you think it's time for a change I made everybody laugh at her that's 30 pairs of eyes laughing at you on the first day of school ask yourself right now don't tell me ask yourself can I handle 30 pairs of eyes laughing at me and if your answer is no then you should self-evaluate because since you can't handle 30 pairs of eyes laughing at you now you can't be composed and since you can't be composed now you want some get back and get backs look like get out my room Miss P never told me that even though I just made all these people laugh at her you know why she didn't take it personal see to be a great teacher you must first be over self and if you're not over self then there going to be snags a lot of snags along the way once again no need to tell me ask yourself can I handle 30 kids 15 or 18 they laughing at me once again a good teacher her true intent is to teach and not punish teach and not punish
