Who will glaze my donuts? Who will glaze my donuts by Jen Genevieve? Kelly has a couple of donuts. She made them herself, but there's only one thing missing before she puts them on a shelf. Kelly's donuts were delicious. Everyone loved her displays. Gobble my sausage. [laughter] Freshly glazed donuts. But now her donuts are missing a sweet and sticky glaze. No glaze. [laughter] I'll gobble a sausage instead. Donuts without a glaze. No, that would go against tradition. Kelly had an idea.

She planned a competition. She designed a poster to put up around the town. I want your glaze. It read, "Bring your samples down. I want your glaze. Bring samples. I'll [laughter] be back in 2 minutes." Colin gave his sample. Kelly said, "Thank you for coming." [laughter] She had a taste. It was yummy and definitely in [laughter] the running. Up next was James. He looked very confident and smutty. Kelly had a lick and spat it [laughter] out. It was far too nutty.

Was Colin the only contender? Was his glaze really the best? An old man came to give his sample. This is for you to test. Wrong sample. [laughter] Kelly called Colin. I want your glaze. I need a huge supply. Colin replied, "I'll be there in 10 and I'll give you a free cream pie." [laughter] Colin came with a bucket half filled. Kelly was amazed. [laughter] She's like, "Oh my god, Colin, my donuts are ready and waiting to be [laughter] glazed."

Colin's glaze was perfect. [clears throat] It was so warm and sweet. He's like, "You know that's right." [laughter] Kelly wasted no time at all and displayed her sticky trees. This dude's making it rain. >> [laughter]
